Stiff Health Law Demanded By TB Group

Circleville city council next week will be urged to pass a law requiring all food handlers to submit to physical checkups every six months.

A request for such legislation has been sent to the city fathers by Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association. It will be read during the regular council meeting next Tuesday.

A similar request has been addressed to Pickaway County board of health asking for similar legal action to be taken throughout the county.

The association's demand was

Soviets Claims Yank Fliers Fire On Red Airport

LONDON, Oct. 10—Russia protested to the United States today that two American jet fighters had attacked a Soviet airfield some 62 miles north of the Korean frontier.

A broadcast dispatch from the Soviet Agency Tass said that the U.S. planes had violated Russian territory Sunday in a hedge-hopping strike during which they fired on an airfield about 40 miles south of the port of Vladivostok.

A U.S. Far East Airforces spokesman in Tokyo said he was unable to comment at this time on the Soviet charge.

Tass said the protest was read yesterday to U.S. Minister-Counselor Walworth Barbour in Moscow by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Barbour refused to accept the protest on grounds that the matter was one for United Nations consideration and the protest then was forwarded to the American embassy.

The Russians contended the alleged incident was strictly a Soviet-American affair since the planes definitely were identified as U.S. craft.

The protest note demanded severe punishment for the fliers responsible for the attack, along the coast of the Sukhia Rechka area above the northeastern tip of Korea, and asked assurances that the U.S. government will take necessary measures to prevent "similar provocative actions in the future."

Gromyko told Barbour that the two planes of the Shooting Star type opened fire with machine-guns after flying in low over the field and caused damage at the airfield.

After 100 Years, She Is Believer

WELLESLEY, Mass., Oct. 10—Mrs. Julia E. Rice today marked her 100th birthday with an admission that she had been wrong about the telephone.

She recalled the night in 1878 when she attended a lecture by Alexander Graham Bell in Boston. The inventor made a call on the telephone and told the audience he had been talking to someone at the public library.

Mrs. Rice said she turned to her companion and said: "He'll never make me believe that."

DR. GEORGE W. BEADLE, biologist at California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, is one of three scientists who will receive a 1950 Lasker Award of the American Public Health Association. His "Oscar" will be for genetic discoveries which may enable man to control or eliminate transmission of hereditary factors which invite disease in plants. He is shown pollinating corn which, as seedlings, were exposed to atomic bomb blasts at Bikini and Eniwetok.

DOWN PAYMENTS GOING UP

Drastic Home-Building Rules Set Up By Agency

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—The Federal Reserve Board will announce today new credit controls on home buying centered on a uniform down payment system that will force consumers—including veterans—to put up from ten to 50 percent cash on new home purchases.

The board will impose the regulations in a drastic anti-inflation move scheduled to become effective before the end of the week.

To this end the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association respectfully petitions the Circleville city council and the Pickaway County board of health to enact legislation and rulings requiring that all food handlers submit to a physical inspection including a chest x-ray and blood test every six months.

The Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association by action of its board of directors agrees to pay all expenses of the chest x-rays necessary for these examinations.

The letter was signed by Mrs. Ray Davis, president of the health group.

President To Fly To Rendezvous

St. Louis to witness the installation of his sister, Mary Jane Truman, in an Eastern Star post.

Ross said that was all he was going to say about the meeting at this time, and declined to answer any questions whatsoever.

Ross said he would announce details of arrangements of the meeting and its timing later today.

The President will remain overnight in St. Louis and then leave Thursday afternoon for his rendezvous with MacArthur in the Pacific.

It was understood that the conference with MacArthur may take place in Hawaii.

The meeting will be the first time that Mr. Truman has conferred in person with MacArthur during the five and one-half years he has been in the White House.

During that time, MacArthur has been in the Far East as United States commander in Japan.

The announcement of the conference between the President and the Far Eastern commander came without prior intimation at the White House.

Ross said that Mr. Truman will return from his conference with the general in time to make his scheduled address to the UN General Assembly at Flushing Meadow, N. Y., on Oct. 24.

THIS WILL BE the President's first trip to the Pacific since he has been President. The last presidential conference in the Pacific was held by the late President Roosevelt with MacArthur in 1944.

This "Pacific Conference" was held in a mansion in Hawaii on the shores of Waikiki in the shadow of world famous Diamond Head.

It was at this conference that plans were shaped for the American invasion of the Philippines and the final strategy that brought victory to U. S. armed forces over Japan in World War II.

Meanwhile, in Korea, the Communist key eastern port of Wonsan fell to South Korean forces and American troops on the peninsula's west side rammed more than three and a half miles above the 38th Parallel on the road to Pyongyang.

Near the middle of a 150-mile front along which some 50,000 Allied troops were surging over enemy territory, other South Korean units seized Korea's prime electric power center of Hwachon and pushed farther north.

The heaviest fighting by any of the five United Nations divisions spearheading the massive offensive into North Korea was being waged by the U. S. First Cavalry Division pressing up the rail-highway route to the Communist capital of Pyongyang.

International News Service War Correspondent Bernard Kaplan, accompanying First Cavalry forces north of the border, reported that the division's eighth regiment captured strategic Hill 411, dominating a series of heights overlooking the Pyongyang road.

In a field dispatch received at 8:25 Tuesday night, Kaplan said the tank-paced eighth regiment had pushed 3.6 miles north of the 38th Parallel by the end of the day's fierce fighting.

THE EIGHTH, carrying forward the central prong of the First Cavalry Division's triple-pronged drive onto enemy soil, bore the brunt of dogged opposition offered by Red troops estimated to total a full division.

The Communist soldiers, numbering perhaps 10,000, showed no tendency to surrender to the attacking Americans, despite MacArthur's "last chance" ultimatum.

um broadcast Monday. Kaplan reported no more than 150 of the enemy had been captured or had given themselves up after 48 hours of vicious combat.

The first American advance into North Korean territory began early Monday and gained only 1,500 yards in the initial day's fighting. The rate of advance was stepped up Tuesday when an additional 4,500 yards was gained.

From hillside and other fortified positions astride the Seoul-to-Pyongyang rail-highway artery, the Communists laid down heavy mortar, machinegun and rifle fire. Enemy land mines delayed American tank thrusts.

Kaplan quoted a First Cavalry sergeant as saying that "if we want them we have to go in and kill them in those trenches," adding:

"They only stop fighting when they're dead."

On the eighth regiment's west flank, the First Cavalry's historic seventh regiment sent two battalions across the Yesong river after beating off three "banzai" counter-attacks by some 150 die-hard Reds.

The seventh regiment units drove northwest and advanced across the 38th Parallel beyond Pachchon against little resistance.

On the east flank, the First Cavalry's fifth regiment smashed over the border in the vicinity of Yongchon against Red machinegun and rifle fire.

American spearheads in the center were less than nine and a half miles south of their first important objective, the junction of Kumchon on the double-tracked railroad to Pyongyang, some 75 miles to the northwest.

Inasmuch as taxes from Pickaway County share in support of the Ohio Department of Health the citizens of this county are entitled to exactly the same services of the department as the citizens of every other county.

The establishment of the minimum standards was made without previous notice to the local departments of health. Adequate notice should have been given to enable local departments to meet minimum standards, before being penalized for what the state department considers their shortcomings.

Those counties which do not meet minimum standards are the ones which stand most in need of additional assistance from the state department, instead of being deprived of their just share of services.

"It is with the hope that the state department of health will reconsider this ill-advised action that we register our protest in this way."

LESSON OF A WEEK

THIS IS Fire Prevention Week. The period from October 9 to 15 has been Fire Prevention Week since 1922 when, by proclamation of President Harding, the 40th anniversary of the Chicago fire was officially selected as a suitable occasion to remind the public of the consequences of carelessness in handling fire and inflammables.

Actually, organized efforts to combat fire have been made since 1911. However, repeated examples of the horror that fire can visit upon human beings seems to have made no deep impression.

In the last decade fire has steadily increased its toll. More than 100,000 persons have been burned to death and many times that number have been disfigured or injured seriously. Every day 28 are killed by fire and there are fires—every day—in 700 homes, 130 stores, 100 factories, seven churches, seven schools and three hospitals. Every day of the year, every year.

The careless smoker is the most important single cause of death and loss by fire, especially the person who smokes in bed. There are many other causes, of course, and most of them are traceable directly to human carelessness or neglect. Unsafe use of cleaning fluids, failure to dispose carefully of refuse, neglect of chimneys, roofs and stoves, inadequate safeguards in using electricity are some of the more serious.

The fire that was not directly caused by a human being probably could have been prevented by reasonable human foresight.

SOARING COSTS

APPARENTLY all bets are off on preparedness costs until there is more definite indication as to the level prices are to attain. During World War II the government's indebtedness soared $200,000,000. But the cost of preparedness now is much higher.

Pentagon planners are constantly estimating rearmament costs. One of them says they have raised their estimates more than $5,000,000,000 a year in recent weeks. Estimates now are that $30,000,000,000 a year will be needed for American forces alone. Washington is committed to a policy of bearing most of the burden of rearming Europe. Defense of other spots such as Korea may boost the figure considerably.

The U. S. is spending $2,000,000,000 a year on economic aid abroad, with no end in sight. The $5,000,000,000 Washington has pledged for arms in Europe will be chicken feed when the bills start pouring in. The nation has been warned that the national budget will vault from $40,000,000,000 to $60,000,000. Now it is widely predicted that will be insufficient.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

I once heard Countess Tolstoy ask why the United States, in all our troubles with Russia, does not use the knowledge and abilities of anti-Stalinist Russians. Our State Department has apparently rejected them.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. of Massachusetts recently raised this issue again. He said:

"One of Hitler's most glaring errors in World War II was his stupid handling of the millions of anti-Communist Russians who hated their Russian rulers so much that they welcomed the German conquerors with open arms. One of the most famous Russian anti-Communist leaders was General Vlasov, who organized an army of non-Communist Russians to fight on the German side. I saw some of these Vlasov soldiers at the time of the invasion of Southern France. They were in German uniform and appeared to be Mongolians. There were several millions of anti-Communist men available, but Hitler did not have enough professional officers, who spoke their language and knew their customs, to organize them into effective military formations and lead them in combat."

Actually, it is estimated that there are about two million such men available. Many of them, I am told, are Ukrainians with underground connections in their mother country. The Hungarian underground is particularly active and effective. In fact, there is a Hungarian government-in-exile in the United States that is directing a movement in that country.

Such movements as these are naturally not readily describable since open activity on their part would nullify the value of their work. But government agencies should be able to establish close contacts with them. More could be accomplished through such men, with all the bitterness that must be in their hearts at the fate of their countries, than in current American propaganda activities which seem to get nowhere.

The Army now has authority to enlist 2,500 aliens. When the bill on this subject was passed by the Senate, there was authority for 25,000 aliens but this figure was whittled down. Considering the possibilities, 2,500 is not enough. Some day, this country will realistically recruit Japanese, Germans and Formosan Chinese, not as mercenaries, but as high-minded, anti-Communist fighters who seek to join in the struggle against the despoiler of their peoples.

Many such men are veterans of wars, professional officers who can find no outlets for their abilities, experts in a variety of fields—men who can be of the greatest service to us.

There will be some who will say that our experience with atom bomb scientists should discourage us from trusting aliens too far. The fact is that in the case of Dr. Klaus Fuchs, an alien found guilty of espionage, and Dr. Alan Nunn May, there should have been no possibility of error. Fuchs's history, as disclosed at his trial in London, should have been known to British and American security officers. The fact that they were careless or even favorably disposed toward Russia and the Communists should not lead us into false conclusions about using aliens to fight Russia or her satellites.

DIET AND HEALTH*"Floating" Kidney Needs Care

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE floating kidney is one which has dropped from its normal position. Many people believe that when this occurs operation is always necessary, but this is not by any means true.

Everything depends on whether the floating kidney is still able to carry out its normal function of ridding the body of harmful by-products of normal processes of living. Operation must also be considered if the floating kidney shows signs of damage due to its new position or is causing severe symptoms.

The tube which leads from the kidney to the bladder is known as the ureter. If the ureter is in a normal position and the kidney is movable, sometimes back pressure of the urine develops, or the urine does not flow into the bladder as it should. As a result, infection of the kidney often develops. There may also be some enlargement of the pelvis of the kidney in which the secretions collect before they empty into the bladder and this may produce pain. If there is pain, especially when the patient is standing up and which is relieved when he is lying down, and if the enlargement is getting worse, operation usually should be carried out.

First Thing

In such cases, the first thing that is done is to make an X-ray examination of the urinary tract. Both kidneys are examined because it is always wise to know for certain the condition of both of these important organs before operating on either.

The physician will decide in each case when operation on the floating kidney is necessary and just what type of operation should be performed. In many cases of movable kidney, the condition can be kept under control by use of a supporting belt and by a moderate gain in weight.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT
PERRY'S feminine instinct was to rush out of the room and to the privacy of her own to fling herself face down across the bed and cry her eyes out. But her ingrained knowledge of her duty as a nurse restrained her. After all, her duty to her patient came first. And so she drew a long, hard breath and straightened, her hands clenched tightly in the capacious pockets of her tailored robe.

"It's my fault, Mr. Ellender, and I acknowledge it freely," she said at last, her voice strained until it was almost harsh. "Dr. McKenzie told me the first day I came here I was too young and too immature for this job. He was quite right. I was young enough to fall in love with him, and that made a fool out of me, and I made a mess of things—for you and Samna and for myself as well. But as soon as Dr. Litton replaces me with another nurse, I'll go away and things can settle down again. If you'll let me help you back to your room—you need rest."

Philip's smile was warm, friendly.

"I'd like to stay here awhile with Samna," he said gently. "Oh, I know she probably won't wake up for several hours, but I'd just like to sit here quietly. Hayden will help me when I'm ready. You're the one who needs rest. Run along, do."

Because it was so obvious that he really meant it, she could do nothing but obey. At the door she dismissed the servants, and as they went uncertainly away, Cook eyed the closed door behind which Philip sat beside his unconscious wife.

"Well, so it's going to come out all right after all," said Cook. "Praise be the good Lord. I've never seen two people as much in love as the master and the mistress. It fair did your heart good to see 'em together. I never rightly understood about the accident, but I always knew the mistress wasn't to blame."

Perry could not answer her, and Cook smiled at her and said, "Now, don't you worry none, miss. The servants all heard the whole thing; but they won't talk. They don't have much to do with the mountain folk anyway, and they've all been with Mr. Philip for years. This is our house and our family and we're a close-mouthed lot, I promise you."

Perry thanked her, smiling a little with tears in her eyes, and Cook lumbered down the stairs after the others. Hayden, who had come in some time after the others, lingered, and Perry said, "You must be terribly tired, Hayden."

"Not at all, miss. It doesn't take much sleep to do me, and I'm so happy this night about the master and the mistress that I wouldn't sleep, even if I went to bed. You get your rest, miss, and I'll have a nap tomorrow while you're with the master," answered Hayden.

"Safe in her own room at last with the door closed behind her, Perry huddled across the bed, her face muffled against the pillow. Now that she was free to give way to tears, there were no tears to shed, because everything was over and done with and she would be leaving here very soon and she would never see Jay McKenzie again. And that was a thought so bitter, so desolate that it was beyond the release of tears."

"It's something I've thought about a lot," she told him coolly. "I'll be useful."

"Nurses are needed here at home."

"A well-trained practical nurse would be entirely adequate for a job like this. It's doesn't require a trained nurse," she reminded him.

He stood frowning at her for a moment, and then he made a little gesture of dismissal and his eyes were dark and angry.

"How about Samna?" he asked flatly.

"Awake, weak, of course, and very depressed, but coming along nicely," she answered just as flatly.

"Hello, Litton," Philip greeted him, and shook hands. There was an odd, almost shamed look in his eyes as they went on to Dr. McKenzie's inscrutable, dark face.

"Good of you to take over, now that Jay's abandoning me."

"I'll have a look at her," said Dr. Litton with brutal frankness. "He's been completely devoted to your case for so long, and reports that you are regaining a partial use of your limbs. I should think you'd hang onto him with grappling hooks, if it was necessary, to keep him."

"I would," said Philip very quietly, and there was a pleading look in his eyes as they tried to look at him, her eyes hostile.

"Well, my dear," began Dr. McKenzie heartily.

"Skip it," ordered Samna huskily. "Let's drop the 'bedside manner.' I understand you saved my life last night, and you may as well know right now that I don't appreciate it at all."

He began explaining the case to Dr. Litton, and Perry stood by, alert, composed, helpful. When it was over, and Dr. Litton had studied the

LESSON OF A WEEK

THIS IS Fire Prevention Week. The period from October 9 to 15 has been Fire Prevention Week since 1922 when, by proclamation of President Harding, the 40th anniversary of the Chicago fire was officially selected as a suitable occasion to remind the public of the consequences of carelessness in handling fire and inflammables.

Actually, organized efforts to combat fire have been made since 1911. However, repeated examples of the horror that fire can visit upon human beings seems to have made no deep impression.

In the last decade fire has steadily increased its toll. More than 100,000 persons have been burned to death and many times that number have been disfigured or injured seriously. Every day 28 are killed by fire and there are fires—every day—in 700 homes, 130 stores, 100 factories, seven churches, seven schools and three hospitals. Every day of the year, every year.

The careless smoker is the most important single cause of death and loss by fire, especially the person who smokes in bed. There are many other causes, of course, and most of them are traceable directly to human carelessness or neglect. Unsafe use of cleaning fluids, failure to dispose carefully of refuse, neglect of chimneys, roofs and stoves, inadequate safeguards in using electricity are some of the more serious.

The fire that was not directly caused by a human being probably could have been prevented by reasonable human foresight.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., May Wind Up in Truman Cabinet | Navy Secretary Matthews Due To Get His Walking Papers

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Speculation is current in Washington that Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the late President, may become a member of President Truman's cabinet.

Insiders assert the President may soon hand Navy Secretary Francis Matthews his walking papers largely because of his recent "preventive war" speech in Boston.

The reports add that young Roosevelt, now a Democratic House member, will become Matthews' successor.

Should the speculation prove true, the son of the late President will be following family tradition inasmuch as his father served as assistant secretary of the Navy in World War I.

The youthful congressman knows the Navy from a working level from his wartime service as a sea-going officer.

Those circulating the reports declare a cabinet appointment would take some of the sting from the fact young Roosevelt failed to land the New York state Democratic nomination for governor and would also lend political drawing power to the administration.

Man Has Made Progress In Study Of Heavens, Monday Club Is Told

Mrs. W. T. Ulm Is Speaker

"We have made some progress toward a reasonable explanation of the universe," Mrs. W. T. Ulm stated in her address on "The Night Sky" before members of Monday Club.

Mrs. Ulm traced knowledge of the heavens from man's earliest observations to modern astronomy.

Quoting from the 19th Psalm, she began her address with "The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament sheweth His handiwork. Day unto Day uttereth speech and night unto night showeth knowledge."

Mrs. Ulm declared that knowledge "has come only by generations of men passing their learning on to the future generations. Neither Copernicus nor Einstein pulled his theory from the blue air, but by observation combined with knowledge gained and knowledge shared with others interested in the study of the night sky."

"Poems, legends, superstitions, myths and science have endeavored to explain the mysteries of the heaven. The moon is linked with the oldest and most persistent superstitions and myths. Science now explains many of the influences and mysteries of the moon. A present day astronomer declares that within 20 years space ships will reach the moon."

Mrs. Ulm told her listeners that the scientific mind has always existed. "Great are the names of astronomers and scientists who have changed peoples' ideas about the heavens," she said.

Mrs. Ulm gave Galileo as an outstanding example of a scientific mind, that "could grasp any subject with equal facility."

He was an accomplished musician, art critic, and scientific discoverer. His idea of the pendulum gave the modern clock. With his own improved telescope he saw the satellites of Jupiter and multitudes of stars that no one had ever seen. Galileo's invention fired the minds of scientific peoples to further study of the universe.

"Today," Mrs. Ulm said, "there is installed on Mt. Palomar, Cal., a 200-inch telescope which will undoubtedly open up to us worlds as completely unexplored as those Galileo saw. The instrument will help test out theories of the expanding universe and space navigation."

Mrs. Ulm concluded by saying "We are a little people on a lit-

College Chief's Wife Speaks At WSCS Meeting

When Mrs. David Jones, wife of the president of Bennett College, addressed the open meeting of Women's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist church she spoke of the inscription on the college bell which has rung each day since its installation in 1973.

On the bell are words taken from Isaiah: "Freedom to those in bondage, that they may become trees of righteousness, plantings of Jehovah."

Mrs. Jones told of the founding of the college in Greenboro, N. C., when a group of Negro men met in a Methodist church to make plans for a college for Negroes.

Lyman Bennett, collar manufacturer, and friend of Abraham Lincoln, donated $10,000 to build the college. After a visit there he raised enough money to purchase bell for the new institution. It was this bell with its inscription of which Mrs. Jones spoke.

Bennett College, now a college for Negro women, has a capacity enrollment of 500 from 28 states and three foreign countries.

The school, under the supervision of the Methodist church, has had as its president since 1926, David Jones.

MASSILLON IS GOOD, TOO

Big News Syndicate Takes
'Look At Our 'Champions'

"Massillon, Canton McKinley or some other large school probably will fight it out for recognition as the state mythical high school football champion ship, but down in Circleville it makes little difference," International News Service reported from Columbus Tuesday. The big news syndicate continued:

"The state champ in the eyes of Pickaway Countians are the Circleville Tigers and with good reason. Although not playing the more 'professional' type of team, Circleville has recorded 22 wins without defeat."

"But some of these have come

Tiger Juniors
To Meet Lion
Cubs Thursday

Circleville's junior Tiger football team will travel to Washington C. H. Thursday to seek its second win in three starts to date this season.

Coach Dick West, mentor for the junior grididers, said the contest against the Washington Blue Lion Cubs will be the first of four scheduled games which will last the local juniors through Nov. 1.

The CHS juniors to date have won against Chillicothe while dropping a narrow decision to Lancaster.

The team posted a 12-12 win over invading Chillicothe Cavalier juniors. Lancaster Golden Gales marked a 27-20 victory over them.

Probable starters for the Washington skirmish, West said, will be Dale Rogers and Mike Brown at ends; Jerry Anderson and Robin Jones at tackles; Bob Rader and Clyde Cook at guards; Jim Shaffer at center; and Tom Elsea, Ronnie Bennington, Paul Hill and John Wilkes in the backfield.

OTHER JUNIOR Tigers who probably will play in the contest are Ends Fred Styers, David Blue, Don Skinner, Charles Waple and Jim Leist; Tackles Joe Blue, Jack Fowler, Glenn Williams and Tom Tatman; Guards Ralph Anderson, Jim Davis, Kenny Crawford and Ted Davis; Centers Bob Reber and Bill Bircher; and Backs Walt Heine, Howard Cook, Fred Davis, Bill Barthelmas, Dick Weaver, Tom Graef, Don Eitel, Albert Sabine and Gary Thomas.

Coach West said Thursday's encounter at Washington is slated to begin at 4 p. m.

Remainder of the schedule on tap for the juniors is: Oct. 19 at Hillsboro; Oct. 25 at Chillicothe; and Nov. 1 Hillsboro here.

1920 CHS Team Scores 101-0 Record Win

Circleville high school's rampaging 1950 football team will have to do better than its 89-0 victory last Friday over Hillsboro to set a new scoring mark.

Following the lopsided victory over the invading Hillsboro Indians last Friday, some fans hopefully voiced the claim that the Tigers had set a new local scoring record.

Mayor Walter Heise of South Bloomfield has set the record straight.

Heise, father of Phil Heise, right halfback on the 1950 Tiger aggregation, was left end on the 1920 CHS team which rolled to a decisive 101-0 victory over Hamden in his team's season opener.

THE GAME, played Oct. 20, 1920, was described as follows in The Circleville Union-Herald:

"Circleville high school football team won the first game of the season Friday afternoon from Hamden by the lopsided score of 101-0 and the visiting team members went home with a big goose egg tied on their backs.

"The game was not very exciting but it goes to show CHS has a chance for a championship team."

The same team went on later to hand Hillsboro a 14-7 defeat and to mark a 10-6 victory over Greenfield.

Circleville's powerhouse team of 30 years ago had primarily one difficulty—that of finding teams which would accept its challenge.

The 1920 powerhouse was coached by Ivan W. Davis, now assistant commissioner in the Ohio High School Athletic Association and who addressed Circleville Booster Club here last Thursday.

Starting lineup for the team was Heise, left end; Cupp, left tackle; Rothman, left guard; Conyers, center; Rooney, right guard; Palm, right tackle; Jones, right end; Courtright, quarterback; Weffler-Rader, left halfback; Jones, right halfback; and Fissell, fullback.

The 1950 Tigers were 12 points, or two touchdowns, away from tying the mark last week in its contest against Hillsboro.

Kerns reportedly suffered cracked lower ribs in last week's tilt, although neglecting the hurt until after the contest.

Brudzinski, after Monday's warmup practice in the park, added that none of the other Tigers appeared to be nursing hurts and should be in fighting shape by Friday.

The Tigers were to have completed an intra-squad scrimmage Tuesday in Ted Lewis Park, following through on Wednesday with dummy scrimmages.

Some Changes Made In Ohio's Duck Season

Pickaway County hunters, attention! Here are some reminders about the 1950 waterfowl season which opens Oct. 20 at noon and closes one hour before sunset Nov. 23.

Also remember that daily hunting hours after the first day will be from half an hour before sunrise to an hour before sunset.

Check the weather box in the upper lefthand corner of The Circleville Herald.

The bag limit on ducks is four and the possession limit is eight.

Only one wood duck can be taken each day, but as usual there is no possession limit on red breasted mergansers and the bag limit is 25.

The bag and possession limit for geese is four—and not more than two of these can be Canada geese or white fronted geese.

All guns must be limited to three-shell capacity. Plugs may be used on repeating shotguns providing the gun must be taken down to remove the plug.

And don't forget that two-dollar duck stamp that you buy at the postoffice. Carry it with you whenever you are hunting, if you are over 16 years old.

Opera Star Buys Bit Of Browns

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 — Metropolitan Opera Star Helen Traubel owns a "nice chunk" of the St. Louis Browns baseball team today.

The Wagnerian specialist disclosed last night that she had purchased a part interest in the American League club "to satisfy a sentimental urge."

Miss Traubel, who was born in St. Louis, said she always had been sentimental about the Browns "because they are my first recollections of baseball."

TOLEDO, Oct. 10—The great pacing stallion, Alemite, which once held six track records and two world marks, has been retired to stud service in Indiana.

Firemen Say To Give Heating Plant Thorough Checkup

Winter May Bring Trouble

Fire Chief Gives Tips On Safety

With frost season here and winter just around the corner, Circleville fire department officials this week urged complete safety checks of all heating equipment.

Fire Chief Palmer Wise said that "if you are practical, you will take a few hours now to check your heating system from top to bottom." He added:

"Why wait until everyone else does, then swamp the repairman with calls and be delayed in getting the plant fixed?"

A good place to begin is the heating plant. Start by emptying it of ashes. Make sure the grates work properly. If any are broken, replace them immediately. Examine the walls of the fire box for cracks. Make sure that the boiler has no cracks or leaks.

A PRACTICAL, although messy, job is to remove soot. Clean it from the baffles in the hot water boiler above the fire box, from the furnace, and from the chimney. A hard-bristled brush is the best weapon.

If you don't want to get too dirty, strap an extension on the brush handle. You can clean a chimney fairly well by lowering a couple of bricks wrapped in a gunny sack down from the top a few times. An easier method is to hire a chimney sweep.

Once the heating plant is in order, check the heating units throughout the house. Often they are the cause of slow heating.

Cast iron radiators, for instance, are slow to heat and slow to cool off.

Be sure to let the air out of them during your inspection rounds. Just turn the air vent and let it flow until the water starts to run out. A good dusting might not be amiss either, for cast iron radiators, while slow to heat, are not slow to pick up floating dust.

Many home owners prefer to replace old radiators with modern convectors. These attractive, economical units take up much less space than radiators and provide more comfortable heat, for they keep the air in a room circulating. Convectors can be installed wherever radiators are, and the cost is surprisingly low.

County's Blood Quota To Be Upped To 3,200 Pints, ARC Aide Hints

Pickaway County, which has donated less than one-sixteenth of its American Red Cross blood quota in the last two years, is destined to receive a severe jolt in the near future.

A Red Cross spokesman said Monday that the local quota would be increased in the near future from 800 pints a year to 3,200.

The spokesman, Carl H. Braley, assistant director of the Columbus regional blood center, detailed the probability at a meeting of Circleville Kiwanis Club Monday evening.

He said that "in two years, Pickaway County has given less than 100 pints of blood" to the center. He declared that while exact figures were not available, center officials are convinced that Pickaway Countians have received more than that amount without obligation from Red Cross.

Reason for quadrupling the local quota, Braley said, is due to a stepped-up need throughout the nation.

County's Blood Quota To Be Upped To 3,200 Pints, ARC Aide Hints

quota was based on an average of one pint per 35 persons.

Next visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile is tentatively scheduled for February. Last visit here brought absolutely no donors, he reported.

Braley cited three reasons for cooperation with the local ARC program. They were:

1. Selfishness — Pick away. Columbus is using blood, but not replenishing the supply. He said that personal selfishness for personal needs should be sufficient cause for cooperation.

2. Patriotic — Blood from the Columbus center is being shipped at regular intervals via air transport to American GIs wounded in the war against Communism in Korea.

A local Red Cross spokesman recalled that during World War II "we waved the flag and made our quota. If another war strikes, we probably will not have time to wave any flag."

3. Common Sense — Keeping an adequate supply of whole blood in the Columbus center would insure against need in case of an atomic attack by a potential enemy. The Columbus area, of which Circleville is a definite part, is one of the major possible attack centers.

Since an A-bomb burst in Columbus would bring destruction over a 50-mile radius, Circleville would feel the effect. Red Cross estimates it would need three million pints of blood to care for one A-bomb attack area.

Braley declared that "we need Pickaway County's help and we need it desperately."

In the atom bomb instances, those in charge, including Senator Brian McMahon's Senate watchdog committee, failed properly to screen the aliens. We must assume that their carelessness will not be a pattern for the armed services for all time, and that adequate screening is to be expected hereafter. Certainly, there can no longer be any excuse for a Fuchs, not even the excuse that a President liked Uncle Joe.

Senator Lodge said of this:

It is safe to say that we could never have made our maximum effort in these wars without the alien soldier, fighting on a voluntary basis in the uniform of the United States. In all our wars we have welcomed allies who fight at our side under their own flag and in the uniform of their own country. We should not reject—indeed we should warmly welcome—the individual ally who wears our uniform and fights under our flag. We should sensibly welcome the immense difference between the mercenary hireling and the volunteer citizen candidate for which our present law provides."

Herald Photo Shocks Localite

Wayne McConaughay of 456 East Ohio street received a shock Saturday when he picked up his copy of The Circleville Herald.

The paper carried a page one picture of American war prisoners in Korea. McConaughay said he recognized the fourth prisoner from the left in the first row as his brother, Willis, 21, of Washington C. H.

He said Willis had been reported missing since July 27. He enlisted in March, 1948, was due for discharge next March.

Wanted—by Almost Half the People!

According to a recent widespread survey—almost half the motor car owners in the United States would choose a Cadillac, if they had their unrestricted choice.

This is, of course, a tremendous tribute to Cadillac, and to those who have designed it so well and built it so soundly for so long a time. But we think it is, equally, a tribute to the American people themselves.

Only a small percentage of American motorists have ever driven a Cadillac—or even enjoyed a ride in one.

But that has not hindered the public from sensing the soundness of the Cadillac ideal—or from giving its wholehearted approval to the Cadillac crusade for quality. Where the effort is worthy—the American people approve.

We regret exceedingly that not every one who wants a Cadillac can own one. But we believe, sincerely, that many have needlessly denied themselves the pleasure.

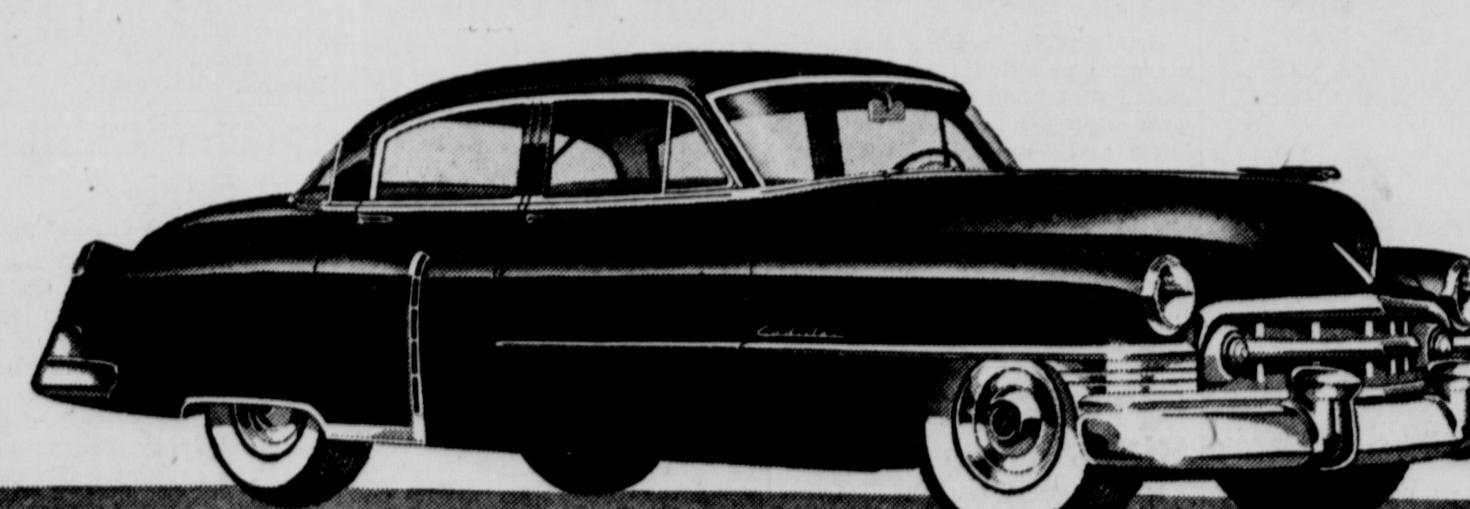

Cadillac cars are far more practical and economical to own than most people realize.

It costs less to buy the lower-priced Cadillacs than it costs to buy certain models of numerous other makes of cars.

Furthermore, a single tankful of gasoline will usually suffice for a whole day's drive.

And, of course, when it comes to endurance, a Cadillac stands alone—for its life-span has never been fully measured.

Yes, for a wide group of people, a Cadillac car is a sensible, practical buy. We hope sincerely that it is for you.

Stiff Health Law Demanded By TB Group

Circleville city council next week will be urged to pass a law requiring all food handlers to submit to physical checkups every six months.

A request for such legislation has been sent to the city fathers by Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association. It will be read during the regular council meeting next Tuesday.

A similar request has been addressed to Pickaway County board of health asking for similar legal action to be taken throughout the county.

The association's demand was touched off by the discovery during its recent chest x-ray survey of one positive case of tuberculosis in a Circleville food handler.

A local health authority said the person referred to in the association's report was employed in a Circleville restaurant at the time of the chest survey. He added that the person is still employed by the restaurant.

THE HEALTH authority pointed out, however, that passage of legislation requiring semi-annual health checkups would be of little use unless something were also done to prevent persons found with the disease from continuing to work.

"What are they going to do after they have conducted the tests and found persons with the disease?" he asked. "The examination in itself is useless."

"Tuberculosis is a highly infectious disease and is communicated to health individuals by contact with an active case," the association reported in its letter to council, board of health and local service clubs.

"More people died in Ohio last year from tuberculosis than from any other infectious or contagious disease. Germs may be conveyed on food more readily than by any other means save actual physical contact.

"In the past we have endeavored to persuade food handlers in particular to take advantage of our free x-ray service, but the response, while gratifying, has not been 100 percent.

"For the protection of the public, all persons engaged in handling food must be certified as free from tuberculosis, venereal disease and all other acute and chronic infectious diseases."

To this end the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association respectfully petitions the Circleville city council and the Pickaway County board of health to enact legislation and rulings requiring that all food handlers submit to a physical inspection including a chest x-ray and blood test every six months.

The Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association by action of its board of directors agrees to pay all expenses of the chest x-rays necessary for these examinations."

The letter was signed by Mrs. Ray Davis, president of the health group.

Swimming Pool Poll Tabulation Being Delayed

Circleville's swimming pool investigation committee postponed its meeting originally scheduled for Monday until after Pumpkin Show.

Henry Reid, chairman of the committee, said the postponement was made because several of the civic clubs had not completed their "straw votes."

Circleville clubs, all represented on the investigating committee, have received ballots to determine the enthusiasm for constructing a swimming pool here.

The "straw vote" ballots contain three proposals made by the committee in order to determine whether a pool is wanted here and by which means it should be financed if it is wanted.

The proposals are:

1. A municipally-owned pool financed by bond issue;

2. Privately-owned pool operated by a non-profit organization and financed by contributions and loans; and

3. No swimming pool at all.

Reid said the committee probably will meet during the week following Pumpkin Show to count the ballots and to determine local interest in the project.

Chinese Join Fight, Report

LONDON, Oct. 10—A dispatch from the London Evening News said today that Chinese reported fighting with the North Koreans soon will be revealed as Gen. Lin Pao's Communist fourth field army.

The dispatch from Hong Kong, which quoted no source, added that over the weekend thousands of Chinese troops crossed into North Korea from Manchuria.

He is shown pollinating corn which, as seedlings, were exposed to atomic bomb blasts at Bikini and Eniwetok.

DOWN PAYMENTS GOING UP

Drastic Home-Building Rules Set Up By Agency

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—The Federal Reserve Board will announce today new credit controls on home buying centered on a uniform down payment system that will force consumers—including veterans—to put up from ten to 50 percent cash on new home purchases.

The board will impose the regulations in a drastic anti-inflation move scheduled to become effective before the end of the week.

To this end the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association respectfully petitions the Circleville city council and the Pickaway County board of health to enact legislation and rulings requiring that all food handlers submit to a physical inspection including a chest x-ray and blood test every six months.

The Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association by action of its board of directors agrees to pay all expenses of the chest x-rays necessary for these examinations."

South Koreans Who Aided Reds Going On Trial

SEOUL, Oct. 10—The first group of South Korean Communists collaborators from about 2,000 already apprehended are scheduled to go on trial in Seoul's district court within the next week.

Brig. Gen. Lee Choon Ski, military administrator of martial law in the Seoul-Inchon district, said the first collaboration trials are now in the final stages of preparation.

He added he expects the military trials to get underway by the beginning of next week.

Lee explained that the Communist collaborators are being divided into three categories:

(1) Communist leaders and members of the outlawed Communist Party;

(2) Non-Communists who voluntarily collaborated with the North Koreans, and;

(3) Non-Communists who were forced under duress to collaborate with the Communist regime.

President To Fly To Rendezvous

St. Louis to witness the installation of his sister, Mary Jane Truman, in an Eastern Star post.

Ross said that was all he was going to say about the meeting at this time, and declined to answer any questions whatsoever.

Ross said he would announce details of arrangements of the meeting and its timing later today.

The President will remain overnight in St. Louis and then leave Thursday afternoon for his rendezvous with MacArthur in the Pacific.

It was understood that the conference with MacArthur may take place in Hawaii.

The meeting will be the first time that Mr. Truman has conferred in person with MacArthur during the five and one-half years he has been in the White House.

During that time, MacArthur has been in the Far East as United States commander in Japan.

The announcement of the conference between the President and the Far Eastern commander came without prior intimation at the White House.

Ross said that Mr. Truman will return from his conference with the general in time to make his scheduled address to the UN General Assembly at Flushing Meadow, N. Y., on Oct. 24.

THIS WILL BE the President's first trip to the Pacific since he has been President. The last presidential conference in the Pacific was held by the late President Roosevelt with MacArthur in 1944.

"This 'Pacific Conference' was held in a mansion in Hawaii on the shores of Waikiki in the shadow of world famous Diamond Head.

It was at this conference that plans were shaped for the American invasion of the Philippines and the final strategy that brought victory to U. S. armed forces over Japan in World War II.

Meanwhile, in Korea, the Communist key eastern port of Wonsan fell to South Korean forces and American troops on the peninsula's west side rammed more than three and a half miles above the 38th Parallel on the road to Pyongyang.

Near the middle of a 150-mile front along which some 50,000 Allied troops were surging over enemy territory, other South Korean units seized Korea's prime electric power center of Hwachon and pushed farther north.

The heaviest fighting by any of the five United Nations divisions spearheading the massive offensive into North Korea was being waged by the U. S. First Cavalry Division pressing up the rail-highway route to the Communist capital of Pyongyang.

International News Service War Correspondent Bernard Kaplan, accompanying First Cavalry forces north of the border, reported that the division's eighth regiment captured strategic Hill 411, dominating a series of heights overlooking the Pyongyang road.

In a field dispatch received at 8:25 Tuesday night, Kaplan said the tank-paced eighth regiment had pushed 3.6 miles north of the 38th Parallel by the end of the day's fierce fighting.

THE EIGHTH, carrying forward the central prong of the First Cavalry Division's triple-pronged drive onto enemy soil, bore the brunt of dogged opposition offered by Red troops estimated to total a full division.

The Communist soldiers, numbering perhaps 10,000, showed no tendency to surrender to the attacking Americans, despite MacArthur's "last chance" ultimatum.

um broadcast Monday. Kaplan reported no more than 150 of the enemy had been captured or had given themselves up after 48 hours of vicious combat.

The first American advance into North Korean territory began early Monday and gained only 1,500 yards in the initial day's fighting. The rate of advance was stepped up Tuesday when an additional 4,500 yards was gained.

From hillside and other fortified positions astride the Seoul-to-Pyongyang rail-highway artery, the Communists laid down heavy mortar, machinegun and rifle fire. Enemy land mines delayed American tank thrusts.

Kaplan quoted a First Cavalry sergeant as saying that "if we want them we have to go in and kill them in those trenches," adding:

"They only stop fighting when they're dead."

On the eighth regiment's west flank, the First Cavalry's historic seventh regiment sent two battalions across the Yesong river after beating off three "banzai" counter-attacks by some 150 die-hard Reds.

The seventh regiment units drove northwest and advanced across the 38th Parallel beyond Paekchon against little resistance.

On the east flank, the First Cavalry's fifth regiment smashed over the border in the vicinity of Yongchung against Red machinegun and rifle fire.

American spearheads in the center were less than nine and a half miles south of their first important objective, the junction of Kumchon on the double-tracked railroad to Pyongyang, some 78 miles to the northwest.

Stiff Health Law Urged

Gordon said Tuesday: "It is a serious thing. It (passage of legislation) should be done."

THE ASSOCIATION has also gone on record as protesting a recent ruling of the state department of health.

The ruling makes only those local departments of health which meet the minimum standards set up by the state health department eligible for the full benefit of the state's health services.

The minimum standards required of local health boards are:

1. A fulltime health commissioner, nurse, sanitarian and clerk, paid from local funds.

2. An office open during the normal work week prevailing in the community.

3. A program which offers the seven basic services of local health to the community.

Mrs. William Hickey and son of 917 Clinton street returned home after they were dismissed from Berger hospital Tuesday morning.

The minimum standards required of local health boards are:

1. All ancillary and specialized service programs such as tuberculosis and dental trailers.

2. All consultative and advisory services which assist nursing, sanitation and clerical personnel in their local program.

3. Eligibility and participation in the grants-in-aid program.

In a letter of protest to Governor Frank J. Lausche and John D. Porterfield, chief of the state health department, the association said:

"The Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association has been informed that the Circleville health department and the Pickaway County health department were refused any of the services immediately on receipt of this ruling.

"OUR ORGANIZATION strongly condemns such action by the state Department of Health for the following reasons:

1. Inasmuch as taxes from Pickaway County share in support of the Ohio Department of Health the citizens of this county are entitled to exactly the same services of the department as the citizens of every other county.

2. The establishment of the minimum standards was made without previous notice to the local departments of health. Adequate notice should have been given to enable local departments to meet minimum standards, before being penalized for what the state department considers their shortcomings.

3. Those counties which do not meet minimum standards are the ones which stand most in need of additional assistance from the state department, instead of being deprived of their just share of services.

"It is with the hope that the state department of health will reconsider this ill-advised action that we register our protest in this way."

TWO DRIVERS FORFEIT BONDS

Two men forfeited bonds of $10 each Monday in Circleville mayor's court by failing to answer minor traffic violation accusations.

Forfeiting bonds were William Malone, 20, of Barnesville, accused of permitting a non-licensed driver to operate his auto; and James Denman, 63, of Northridge Road, accused of crossing a yellow line on North Court street.

LESSON OF A WEEK

THIS IS Fire Prevention Week. The period from October 9 to 15 has been Fire Prevention Week since 1922 when, by proclamation of President Harding, the 40th anniversary of the Chicago fire was officially selected as a suitable occasion to remind the public of the consequences of carelessness in handling fire and inflammables.

Actually, organized efforts to combat fire have been made since 1911. However, repeated examples of the horror that fire can visit upon human beings seems to have made no deep impression.

In the last decade fire has steadily increased its toll. More than 100,000 persons have been burned to death and many times that number have been disfigured or injured seriously. Every day 28 are killed by fire and there are fires—every day—in 700 homes, 130 stores, 100 factories, seven churches, seven schools and three hospitals. Every day of the year, every year.

The careless smoker is the most important single cause of death and loss by fire, especially the person who smokes in bed. There are many other causes, of course, and most of them are traceable directly to human carelessness or neglect. Unsafe use of cleaning fluids, failure to dispose carefully of refuse, neglect of chimneys, roofs and stoves, inadequate safeguards in using electricity are some of the more serious.

The fire that was not directly caused by a human being probably could have been prevented by reasonable human foresight.

SOARING COSTS

APPARENTLY all bets are off on preparedness costs until there is more definite indication as to the level prices are to attain. During World War II the government's indebtedness soared $200,000,000,000. But the cost of preparedness now is much higher.

Pentagon planners are constantly estimating rearmament costs. One of them says they have raised their estimates more than $5,000,000,000 a year in recent weeks. Estimates now are that $30,000,000,000 a year will be needed for American forces alone. Washington is committed to a policy of bearing most of the burden of rearming Europe. Defense of other spots such as Korea may boost the figure considerably.

The U. S. is spending $2,000,000,000 a year on economic aid abroad, with no end in sight. The $5,000,000,000 Washington has pledged for arms in Europe will be chicken feed when the bills start pouring in. The nation has been warned that the national budget will vault from $40,000,000,000 to $60,000,000. Now it is widely predicted that will be insufficient.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

I once heard Countess Tolstoy ask why the United States, in all our troubles with Russia, does not use the knowledge and abilities of anti-Stalinist Russians. Our State Department has apparently rejected them.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. of Massachusetts recently raised this issue again. He said:

"One of Hitler's most glaring errors in World War II was his stupid handling of the millions of anti-Communist Russians who hated their Russian rulers so much that they welcomed the German conquerors with open arms. One of the most famous Russian anti-Communist leaders was General Vlasov, who organized an army of non-Communist Russians to fight on the German side. I saw some of these Vlasov soldiers at the time of the invasion of Southern France. They were in German uniform and appeared to be Mongolians. There were several millions of anti-Communist men available, but Hitler did not have enough professional officers, who spoke their language and knew their customs, to organize them into effective military formations and lead them in combat."

Actually, it is estimated that there are about two million such men available. Many of them, I am told, are Ukrainians with underground connections in their mother country. The Hungarian underground is particularly active and effective. In fact, there is a Hungarian government-in-exile in the United States that is directing a movement in that country.

Such movements as these are naturally not readily describable since open activity on their part would nullify the value of their work. But government agencies should be able to establish close contacts with them. More could be accomplished through such men, with all the bitterness that must be in their hearts at the fate of their countries, than in current American propaganda activities which seem to get nowhere.

The Army now has authority to enlist 2,500 aliens. When the bill on this subject was passed by the Senate, there was authority for 25,000 aliens but this figure was whittled down. Considering the possibilities, 2,500 is not enough. Some day, this country will realistically recruit Japanese, Germans and Formosan Chinese, not as mercenaries, but as high-minded, anti-Communist fighters who seek to join in the struggle against the despoiler of their peoples.

Many such men are veterans of wars, professional officers who can find no outlets for their abilities, experts in a variety of fields—men who can be of the greatest service to us.

There will be some who will say that our experience with atom bomb scientists should discourage us from trusting aliens too far. The fact is that in the case of Dr. Klaus Fuchs, an alien found guilty of espionage, and Dr. Alan Nunn May, there should have been no possibility of error. Fuchs's history, as disclosed at his trial in London, should have been known to British and American security officers. The fact that they were careless or even favorably disposed toward Russia and the Communists should not lead us into false conclusions about using aliens to fight Russia or her satellites.

And to think that two months ago we thought prices were high!

that ex-Defense Secretary Louis Johnson still has political ambitions and will be heard from in the future despite the fact he was dropped by President Truman.

They declare Johnson may fire his first shot in a come-back campaign next month when he is scheduled to address an American Legion convention. They say it's possible, however, that he may withhold his fire a little longer in the belief that a row with President Truman at this time would be a poor political move.

Defense department intimates report that Johnson, despite the polite tone of his letter of resignation, was bitter against the President and that both were pale and trembling with anger at the closed-door session in which Mr. Truman asked for Johnson's immediate resignation.

At present, Johnson is engaged in personally answering the 5,000 letters and telegrams which reached him during the week of his resignation and then plans to write a book vindicating his work as defense chief on grounds that his administration was high-minded, efficient and successful.

He may make his political move in his native West Virginia and friends report that he once declared that his ambition was to be senator from that state.

INDONESIAN PILOTS—Without fanfare, 60 outstanding young Indonesians will receive flight training in the United States to become leaders of an Indonesian air force should Russia cause trouble in the new republic.

The 60, all of whom speak English, will be given flight courses similar to those given United States Air Force pilots at Minter Field, California.

To prevent any protests, the training will be given by an independent organization, not the United States government. The organization is the Taloa Academy of Aeronautics.

STATIONERY SNARL—The new national production authority to handle home-front economic controls found itself immediately confronted with a problem it couldn't solve the day it was set up.

Newly appointed officials of the NPA—most of them from the Commerce department—turned up eager to go until it was discovered the new agency had NO properly labelled stationery.

There was plenty of writing paper with Commerce department letterheads but it was considered unsuitable under the circumstances. Subsequently, the properly labelled stationery was delivered and a new government agency was born.

former President Senator Robert A. Taft (R), Ohio, is facing an increasingly tough fight for renomination in the Buckeye state, according to Washington political observers.

NONE is predicting Taft's defeat but even Taft supporters are beginning to admit that his opposition is proving stronger than they anticipated. They point to the bitter attacks on Taft by the administration as a major factor in their revised estimate of the chances of Taft's opponent, Joe Ferguson.

DIET AND HEALTH*"Floating" Kidney Needs Care

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE floating kidney is one which has dropped from its normal position. Many people believe that when this occurs operation is always necessary, but this is not by any means true.

Everything depends on whether the floating kidney is still able to carry out its normal function of ridding the body of harmful by-products of normal processes of living. Operation must also be considered if the floating kidney shows signs of damage due to its new position or is causing severe symptoms.

The tube which leads from the kidney to the bladder is known as the ureter. If the ureter is in a normal position and the kidney is movable, sometimes back pressure of the urine develops, or the urine does not flow into the bladder as it should. As a result, infection of the kidney often develops. There may also be some enlargement of the pelvis of the kidney in which the secretions collect before they empty into the bladder and this may produce pain. If there is pain, especially when the patient is standing up and which is relieved when he is lying down, and if the enlargement is getting worse, operation usually should be carried out.

First Thing

In such cases, the first thing that is done is to make an X-ray examination of the urinary tract. Both kidneys are examined because it is always wise to know for certain the condition of both of these important organs before operating on either.

The physician will decide in each case when operation on the floating kidney is necessary and just what type of operation should be performed. In many cases of movable kidney, the condition can be kept under control by use of a supporting belt and by a moderate gain in weight.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. E. C.: What can I use on an enlarged bunion?

Answer: An enlarged bunion can be cured only by means of an operation in which the bursa is removed, and part of the bone cut away.

You should consult an orthopedic specialist concerning it.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Tito wired Washington: "I need money." Our best advice to Washington is to wire back: "Who doesn't?"

His latest message sounds like he's going to sue us for non-support although we don't recall being present at any wedding.

Ever since he closed his branch office for Stalin and went in business for himself, Tito seems to feel that the World Bank owes him a living.

"World Bank" is another name for "American Taxpayers, Unlimited." The way it works is we put in the money and everybody else borrows it.

The only security we demand is an honest face and generally the borrower gets somebody else to pose for the photograph.

You don't have to major in economics to know that the fellow who makes all his money available for loans outside the extradition district ends up with holes in his shoes... if not his head.

ONE MAN'S

Tito wired Washington: "I wired you money." Our best advice to Washington is to wire back: "Who doesn't?"

His latest message sounds like he's going to sue us for non-support although we don't recall being present at any wedding.

Ever since he closed his branch office for Stalin and went in business for himself, Tito seems to feel that the world Bank owes him a living.

"World Bank" is another name for "American Taxpayers, Unlimited." The way it works is we put in the money and everybody else borrows it.

The only security we demand is an honest face and generally the borrower gets somebody else to pose for the photograph.

You don't have to major in economics to know that the fellow who makes all his money available for loans outside the extra-district ends up with holes in his shoes...if not his head.

GEORGIA CRAIG

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT
PERRY'S feminine instinct was to rush out of the room and to the privacy of her own to fling herself down across the bed and cry her eyes out. But her ingrained knowledge of her duty as a nurse restrained her. After all, her duty to her patient came first. And so she drew a long, hard breath and straightened, her hands clenched tightly in the capacious pockets of her tailored robe.

"It's my fault, Mr. Ellender, and I acknowledge it freely," she said at last, her voice strained until it was almost harsh. "Dr. McKenzie told me the first day I came here I was too young and too immature for this job. He was quite right. I was young enough to fall in love with him, and that made a fool out of me, and I made a mess of things—for you and Samna and for myself as well. But as soon as Dr. Litton replaces me with another nurse, I'll go away and things can settle down again. If you'll let me help you back to your room—your need rest."

Philip's smile was warm, friendly.

"I'd like to stay here awhile with Samna," he said gently. "Oh, I know she probably won't wake up for several hours, but I'd just like to sit here quietly. Hayden will help me when I'm ready. You're the one who needs rest. Run along, too."

Because it was so obvious that he really meant it, she could do nothing but obey. At the door she dismissed the servants, and as they went uncertainly away, Cook eyed the closed door behind which Philip sat beside his unconscious wife.

"Well, so it's going to come out all right after all," said Cook. "Praise be the good Lord. I've never seen two people as much in love as the master and the mistress. It fair did your heart good to see 'em together. I never rightly understood about the accident, but I always knew the mistress wasn't to blame."

Perry could not answer her, and Cook smiled at her and said, "Now, don't you worry none, miss. The servants all heard the whole story; but they won't talk. They don't have much to do with the mountain folk anyway, and they've all been with Mr. Philip for years. This is our house and our family and we're a close-mouthed lot, I promise you!"

Perry thanked her, smiling a little with tears in her eyes, and Cook lumbered down the stairs after the others. Hayden, who had come in some time after the others, lingered, and Perry said, "You must be terribly tired, Hayden."

"Not at all, miss. It doesn't take much sleep to do me, and I'm so well, so it's going to come out all right after all," said Cook. "Praise be the good Lord. I've never seen two people as much in love as the master and the mistress. It fair did your heart good to see 'em together. I never rightly understood about the accident, but I always knew the mistress wasn't to blame."

Perry could not answer her, and Cook smiled at her and said, "Now, don't you worry none, miss. The servants all heard the whole story; but they won't talk. They don't have much to do with the mountain folk anyway, and they've all been with Mr. Philip for years. This is our house and our family and we're a close-mouthed lot, I promise you!"

"Skip it," ordered Samna huskily. "Let's drop the 'bedside manner.' I understand you saved my life last night, and you may as well know right now that I don't appreciate it a bit."

Perry began explaining the case to Dr. Litton, and Perry stood by, alert, composed, helpful. When it was over, and Dr. Litton had studied the charts intently and seemed to have the case thoroughly in hand, they went out into the hall, and Dr. McKenzie motioned to Perry to follow them.

"I don't expect you to, to right away," he assured her, quite undisturbed by her hostility. "People often attempt suicide when of unsound mind, and they feel pretty upset until their minds come back to normal."

Samna turned her head restlessly on the pillow.

"The time I was of unsound mind was when I married Phil and thought it would work," she said grimly. "I was fool enough to think that because I loved him so much, and wanted so terribly to make him happy, that was enough."

"This is the first I've heard of it. A rather sudden decision, wasn't it?" he demanded.

She met his eyes straightly and said, "Not too sudden. I am planning to enlist in the Army Nurse Corps, and ask for overseas duty. I've always wanted to travel."

Dr. McKenzie blinked, and Dr. Litton said fussy, "Look, you two, fight this out. I'm due at the hospital for a tonsillectomy in thirty minutes. I'll see you later, Jay."

They were silent until the outer door closed behind him, and then Dr. McKenzie said sharply: "What's all this about joining the Army?"

"It's something I've thought about a lot," she told him coolly. "You won't like it."

"It'll be useful."

"Nurses are needed here at home."

"A well-trained practical nurse would be entirely adequate for a job like this. It's doesn't require a trained nurse," she reminded him.

He stood frowning at her for a moment, and then he made a little gesture of dismissal and his eyes were dark and angry.

"How about Samna?" he asked flatly.

"Awake, weak, of course, and very depressed, but coming along nicely," she answered just as flatly.

"I'll have a look at her," said Dr. McKenzie, and Perry, the perfect nurse, swung open the door for him, stood back politely for him to enter, and would have turned away, except that he gave her a dark look and said, "Come in, nurse."

"Yes, doctor," said Perry, swiftly.

Samna, very white and drawn, turned her head slowly and looked at them, her eyes hostile.

"Well, my dear," began Dr.

Man Has Made Progress In Study Of Heavens, Monday Club Is Told

Mrs. W. T. Ulm Is Speaker

"We have made some progress toward a reasonable explanation of the universe," Mrs. W. T. Ulm stated in her address on "The Night Sky" before members of Monday Club.

Mrs. Ulm traced knowledge of the heavens from man's earliest observations to modern astronomy.

Quoting from the 19th Psalm, she began her address with "The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament sheweth His handiwork. Day unto Day uttereth speech and night unto night sheweth knowledge."

Mrs. Ulm declared that knowledge "has come only by generations of men passing their learning on to the future generations. Neither Copernicus nor Einstein pulled his theory from the blue air, but by observation combined with knowledge gained and knowledge shared with others interested in the study of the night sky."

"Poems, legends, superstitions, myths and science have endeavored to explain the mysteries of the heaven. The moon is linked with the oldest and most persistent superstitions and myths. Science now explains many of the influences and mysteries of the moon. A present day astronomer declares that within 20 years space ships will reach the moon."

Mrs. Ulm told her listeners that the scientific mind has always existed. "Great are the names of astronomers and scientists who have changed peoples' ideas about the heavens," she said.

Mrs. Ulm gave Galileo as an outstanding example of a scientific mind, "could grasp any subject with equal facility."

He was an accomplished musician, art critic, and scientific discoverer. His idea of the pendulum gave the modern clock. With his own improved telescope he saw the satellites of Jupiter and multitudes of stars that no one had ever seen. Galileo's invention fired the minds of scientific peoples to further study of the universe.

"Today," Mrs. Ulm said, "there is installed on Mt. Palomar, Cal., a 200-inch telescope which will undoubtedly open up to us worlds as completely unexplored as those Galileo saw. The instrument will help test out theories of the expanding universe and space navigation."

Mrs. Ulm concluded by saying "We are a little people on a little planet. But we are human and we have minds and records. What we have learned is no mean achievement and our purpose is to follow knowledge like a sinking star beyond the bounds of human thought."

During the business session conducted by Mrs. A. P. McCord, Mrs. A. Hulse Hays and Mrs. Joe Bell were named as delegates to the southeast district meeting to be held in Nelsonville Nov. 1.

Mrs. Lemuel Weldon and Mrs. Charles Gilmore will represent Monday Club as delegates to the Ohioana Library Association meeting to be held in Columbus Saturday.

Berger Guilds Extend Plans On Adopted Rooms

Two Berger hospital guilds with adopted rooms met recently to plan further for their projects.

Berger Hospital Guild 20 met in Jackson Township school as Mrs. Ralph Stevenson named a committee to purchase a footstool for the room. Included are Mrs. Rollif Wolford, Mrs. Charles Neff and Mrs. Robert Moyer.

Mrs. George Mowery will be hostess Oct. 25. Her assistants will be Mrs. Paul Thompson and Mrs. Donald Russell.

Berger Hospital Guild 18 met in Ashville Community Hall with Mrs. George Gardner Jr. presiding. A report was given on the drapes and bedspreads purchased for the adopted room of Guild 18. A bedside pinup lamp will be the next gift.

Nov. 2 was set as date of next meeting.

Locals Attend State Parley

At the convention of Ohio Child Conservation League held in Springfield last week, Mrs. E. Y. Flanigan of Toledo was elected state president.

Attending from here were Mrs. Donald Pontius and Mrs. Carroll Cook of Child Advancement League and Mrs. Joe Rooney and Mrs. Sterling Poling of Child Study Club.

"Today," Mrs. Ulm said, "there is installed on Mt. Palomar, Cal., a 200-inch telescope which will undoubtedly open up to us worlds as completely unexplored as those Galileo saw. The instrument will help test out theories of the expanding universe and space navigation."

Mrs. Ulm concluded by saying "We are a little people on a lit-

College Chief's Wife Speaks At WSCS Meeting

When Mrs. David Jones, wife of the president of Bennett college, addressed the open meeting of Women's Society of Christian Service of First Methodist church she spoke of the inscription on the college bell which has rung each day since its installation in 1873.

On the bell are words taken from Isaiah: "Freedom to those in bondage, that they may become trees of righteousness, plantings of Jehovah."

Mrs. Jones told of the founding of the college in Greenboro, N. C., when a group of Negro men met in a Methodist church to make plans for a college for Negroes.

Lyman Bennett, collar manufacturer, and friend of Abraham Lincoln, donated $10,000 to build the college. After a visit there he raised enough money to purchase a bell for the new institution. It was this bell with its inscription of which Mrs. Jones spoke.

Bennett College, now a college for Negro women, has a capacity enrollment of 500 from 28 states and three foreign countries.

The school, under the supervision of the Methodist church, has had as its president since 1926, David Jones.

A reception was held following the address. Mrs. R. R. Bales presided at the tea table which was centered with yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride is the daughter of Charles Fetheroff of Clarksville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Routt of Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrell Routt, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom, were attendants.

Firemen Say To Give Heating Plant Thorough Checkup

Winter May Bring Trouble

Fire Chief Gives Tips On Safety

With frost season here and Winter just around the corner, Circleville fire department officials this week urged complete safety checks of all heating equipment.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said that "if you are practical, you will take a few hours now to check your heating system from top to bottom." He added:

"Why wait until everyone else does, then swamp the repairman with calls and be delayed in getting the plant fixed?"

A good place to begin is the heating plant. Start by emptying it of ashes. Make sure the grates work properly. If any are broken, replace them immediately. Examine the walls of the fire box for cracks. Make sure that the boiler has no cracks or leaks.

A PRACTICAL, although messy, job is to remove soot. Clean it from the baffles in the hot water boiler above the fire box, from the furnace, and from the chimney. A hard-bristled brush is the best weapon.

If you don't want to get too dirty, strap an extension on the brush handle. You can clean a chimney fairly well by lowering a couple of bricks wrapped in a gunny sack down from the top a few times. An easier method is to hire a chimney sweep.

Once the heating plant is in order, check the heating units throughout the house. Often they are the cause of slow heating.

Cast iron radiators, for instance, are slow to heat and slow to cool off.

Be sure to let the air out of them during your inspection rounds. Just turn the air vent and let it flow until the water starts to run out. A good dusting might not be amiss either, for cast iron radiators, while slow to heat, are not slow to pick up floating dust.

Many home owners prefer to replace old radiators with modern convectors. These attractive, economical units take up much less space than radiators and provide more comfortable heat, for they keep the air in a room circulating. Convector can be installed wherever radiators are, and the cost is surprisingly low.

County's Blood Quota To Be Upped To 3,200 Pints, ARC Aide Hints

Pickaway County, which has donated less than one-sixteenth of its American Red Cross blood quota in the last two years, is destined to receive a severe jolt in the near future.

A Red Cross spokesman said Monday that the local quota would be increased in the near future from 800 pints a year to 3,200.

The spokesman, Carl H. Braley, assistant director of the Columbus regional blood center, detailed the probability at a meeting of Circleville Kiwanis Club Monday evening.

He said that "In two years, Pickaway County has given less than 100 pints of blood" to the center. He declared that while exact figures were not available, center officials are convinced that Pickaway Countians have received more than that amount without obligation from Red Cross.

Reason for quadrupling the local quota, Braley said, is due to a stepped-up need throughout the country.

Sokolsky's These Days

In the atom bomb instances, those in charge, including Senator Brian McMahon's Senate watchdog committee, failed properly to screen the aliens. We must assume that their carelessness will not be a pattern for the armed services for all time, and that adequate screening is to be expected hereafter. Certainly, there can no longer be any excuse for a Fuchs, not even the excuse that a President liked Uncle Joe.

Senator Lodge said of this:

"We should as actively seek instead the help of selected alien soldiers on the same voluntary basis which actuated the countless aliens who fought for our country during the war of the Revolution, the Mexican War, the Civil War and thereafter. It is safe to say that we could never have made our maximum effort in these wars without the alien soldier, fighting on a voluntary basis in the uniform of the United States. In all our wars we have welcomed allies who fight at our side under their own flag and in the uniform of their own country. We should not reject—indeed we should warmly welcome—the individual ally who wears our uniform and fights under our flag. We should sensibly the immense difference between the mercenary hireling and the volunteer citizen candidate for which our present law provides."

Wayne McConaughay of 456 East Ohio street received a shock Saturday when he picked up his copy of The Circleville Herald.

The paper carried a page one picture of American war prisoners in Korea. McConaughay said he recognized the fourth prisoner from the left in the first row as his brother, Willis, 21, of Washington C. H.

Wanted—by Almost Half the People!

According to a recent widespread survey—almost half the motor car owners in the United States would choose a Cadillac, if they had their unrestricted choice.

This is, of course, a tremendous tribute to Cadillac, and to those who have designed it so well and built it so soundly for so long time. But we think it is, equally, a tribute to the American people themselves.

Only a small percentage of American motorists have ever driven a Cadillac—or even enjoyed a ride in one.

But that has not hindered the public from sensing the soundness of the Cadillac ideal—or from giving its wholehearted approval to the Cadillac crusade for quality. Where the effort is worthy—the American people approve.

We regret exceedingly that not every one who wants a Cadillac can own one. But we believe, sincerely, that many have needlessly denied themselves the pleasure. Cadillac cars are far more practical and economical to own than most people realize. It costs less to buy the lower-priced Cadillacs than it costs to buy certain models of numerous other makes of cars. Furthermore, a single tankful of gasoline will usually suffice for a whole day's drive.

And, of course, when it comes to endurance, a Cadillac stands alone—for its life-span has never been fully measured.

Yes, for a wide group of people, a Cadillac car is a sensible, practical buy. We hope sincerely that it is for you.
